Welcome to Issue 227

Highlights

08 Ludicrous laptops
With Asus’ latest laptops topping out at 240W power consumption, Richard Swinburne asks if there’s a market for such beastly machines.

10 Fantasy football franchises
With EA and FIFA no longer playing ball, Tracy King ponders what’s next for the world of football games.

16 Radeon revisions
AMD’s two latest GPUs, the Radeon RX 6950 XT and RX 6750 XT, are put through their paces via two top-end Sapphire cards.

22 NZXT N7 Z690
NZXT’s latest motherboard retains its signature black or white colour scheme, but is it any good?

32 Asus ROG Swift PG279QM
With its rare combination of a 240Hz refresh rate and a 2,560 x 1,440 resolution, Asus’ latest gaming display is quite the powerhouse.

36 Asus TUF Gaming M4
Super-light or wireless, Asus’ latest gaming mouse is available in two distinct options, but which is best?

50 CPU Labs
Antony Leather puts 12 of the latest processors from Intel and AMD through the works in our massive CPU group test.

74 Ghostwire Tokyo
A stunning depiction of Tokyo city centre makes for an incredible backdrop to this entertaining supernatural adventure.

80 Home comforts
Finding your home desk setup leaves you sore and frustrated after a long day? Edward Chester explores your options for improving your desk ergonomics.

88 Response time investigated
Gaming monitors live and die by how quickly they can respond. Learn what the figures mean and how our new testing will now account for this crucial factor.

92 Hobby tech
Gareth Halfacree checks out Nvidia’s latest Jetson AHX Orin, an AI computer aimed at powering robots, drones and other autonomous machines, as well as a new miniature Amiga recreation, TheA500 Mini.

100 Water-cool your graphics card
Antony Leather guides you through the process of water-cooling an Nvidia GeForce RTX 3080 Ti Founders Edition and an AMD Radeon RX 6900 XT.

106 Retro tech
Rick Lane looks back on the days when computer games came not as downloads but in boxes, and big ones at that.

110 Readers’ drives
David Wieland’s brain-in-a-jar inspired computer is a steampunk creation of beauty.
